
Get yourself educated about women's shelters!

Every year, thousands of families are broken up and destroyed with the assistance of the women's shelters in various communities.

Quite often a minor conflict between a couple results in the woman calling the local women's shelter out of anger. Once this call is made, however, the journey to destruction of the family has begun

Women who come to the shelter are then coached into believing that all men are abusive and controlling. They are encouraged to leave their spouses and break up their marriage and come join in with the women at the shelter. Most of the women who work at the shelters who give them this advice are untrained and most often from failed marriages themselves who want other women to join them in their misery and hatred for men. Some of them are lesbians who hate men with a passion.

One of the prime objectives of shelters is to destroy the family and ensure that the women gets everything from the marriage and to help her get rid of the children's father.

When it comes to the best interests of the child, the women's shelters have absolutely no interest because in most cases what they are encouraging mother to do is not in the best interests of her child.

Erin Pizzy, the women and founder of the women's shelter movement in the world has stated publicly that the shelter movement, although started with good intentions, has been taken over by radical feminists with their own agenda and that the millions of dollars being siphoned from the government in the name of "abused women" has served the radical feminist's agenda well.

If you are a business person or citizen and who don't believe what is claimed in this brochure then go to the woman's shelter yourself and offer to volunteer some of your time inside the shelter. Chances are that unless your are a woman and that those at the shelter are convinced that you are willing keep the shelter's little secrets concealed from the community, it is unlikely that your offer of help will be accepted.

Please note:

While it must be noted that some women are the legitimate victims of domestic violence, and the services of a shelter can be of assistance to them, it is the emphasis of this brochure is not to close women's shelters but to educate citizens about the harm being done by current shelter polices and procedures and that shelters, like other business, should be made accountable to the people of the community which they are supposed to be serving and that services should be provided in only a professional, unbiased and fair manner which is in the best interest of children, their families and the community.

For further information about the destruction of children and families by women's shelters then contact the local organization below

The untold truth about Women's Shelters

(that shelters don't want you to know)

Some eye-opening information intended to educate citizens and businesses in the community as to the horrendous damage being done to children and families in the community and how tax dollars are being squandered by women's shelters under the guise of helping "abused women"

Help stop the abuse and destruction of children and families by the women's shelter movement!

Some of the things reported about women's shelters

Below are just some of the things that have been reported about women's shelters, some of them by former residents:

- Residents will leave the shelter late at night to rendezvous with boyfriends or lovers. Often these are the men they were having extramarital relationships with before they left their family home.
- Shelter residents have strategy meetings in which they are coached as to how to destroy their former spouses and best use free taxpayer supplied services such as welfare and legal aid to their advantage
- Children who stay with their mothers in the shelters are exposed to swearing and degrading language often directed at their own fathers. Children are made to feel like their father is a terrible person.
- Some residents live in fear of those operating the shelters.
- Men are not allowed to provide assistance to women in the shelter. The shelter does not want women or children to be exposed to any good male role models.
- Business people in the community have offered to volunteer services but that this is routinely refused. Shelter staff don't want outsiders to see some of the things that are going on in the shelter.
- Women who have kidnapped their children have been concealed by women's shelters and even the police have not been allowed to enter to apprehend children that have been kidnapped.
- Residents are coached on how to break up the marriage and get their spouses kicked out of the home. They get the woman all prepared to make her attack.

- That many woman who are not abused go to a women's shelter. In some cases, even wealthy women with hundreds of thousands of dollars in financial assets have stayed in a woman's shelter at taxpayer's expense. This of course is done to get the sympathy of the court by making the women appear to be abused.
- That some children are abused by their mothers in the shelter and this is hidden by shelter staff so as not to tarnish the shelter's reputation.
- That some women go repeatedly back to the shelter to get more free donations.
- That many women go to shelters falsely claiming to be abused so that they can jump the line for taxpayer's subsidized housing. Many intact families with children are forced to the back of the line while these single mothers, who make false claims, get to jump right to the front of the housing waiting list.
- Once in the shelter the women provide letters of reference to new clients. No questions are asked about their past, even if they have abused their children or how good the father might be.
- That donations made to the shelters are being traded for drugs, booze and cigarettes by those in the shelters.
- That physical fights break up between women at the shelter in fights over donations.
- That staff pick over donations and take them home for themselves.
- That some of the women associated with running the shelters are lesbian and make sexually advances to new women who come to the shelter.

What can citizens of a community do to help stop abuse of children and families by women's shelters?

There are a number of things that you can do to help stop abuse by women's shelters.

- Take some time to educate yourself about the bias against men by family courts and government agencies such as police, social services and women's shelters.
- Do not provide any financial support to programs that support only one gender such as the United Way and the White Ribbon Campaign.
- Do not provide donations and support to women's shelters until the government also provides money to help fathers who are being abused by their spouses.
- Do not support businesses that support gender specific programs such as Shoppers Drug Mart or the Body Shop.
- Support organizations that support fairness, justice and equality between genders. Many family advocacy organizations promote this.
- Write a letter to both your Provincial and Federal Member of Parliament and tell them that you want accountability by women's shelters by having each shelter provide for viewing by the public documents relating to its hiring policies and its procedures for dealing with abuse victims.
- Demand that those working for the shelters be screened for biases against men and that those with biases be refused to work at a shelter.